4. In January 2006 Swenson offered to at least two Illinois residents (“Investor #1” and “Investor #2, or collectively “Investors”) the opportunity to invest their money in his trading enterprise, Respondent 05914, Inc.
5. Swenson told the Investors that he was a proficient futures “trader” who would sell each of the Investors one share of 05914, Inc. for $15,000 and that each Investor would be paid 1% of all trading profits in exchange for the stock purchase.
6. Swenson promised both Investor #1 and Investor #2 that their $15,000 (total $30,000) would be used to trade futures and that 05914, Inc., would pay each of the Investors an amount equal to 1% of its profits earned from trading.
7. On January 26, 2006 Investor #1 gave Respondents a check for $15,000 for the purchase of one share of 50914, Inc.
8. On January 8, 2006 Investor #2 gave Respondents a check for $10,000, and on September 29, 2006 Investor #2 gave Respondents a check for $5,000 for the purchase of one share of 05914, Inc.
9. The activities described above in paragraphs 4-8 constitute the offer and sale of a stock and/or a participation in a profit-sharing agreement and therefore a security as those terms are defined in Sections 2.1, 2.5 and 2.5a of the Illinois Securities Law of 1953 [815 ILCS 5] (the “Act”).

FRAUD IN SALE OF SECURITIES

Investor #1

10. Instead of depositing Investor #1’s check into 05914, Inc.’s bank account, on January 30, 2006 Swenson deposited Investor #1’s check into his own bank account.
11. On February 6, 2006 Respondents did wire $15,000 from the 05914, Inc. bank account to 05914, Inc.’s futures trading account at Oanda.com, a forex trading company, but made no trades through the account, and instead Respondents withdrew the entire $15,000 (9 withdrawals between $450 and $4975) between July and November of 2006 and converted the $15,000 for Swenson’s personal use and benefit.
12. At the same time Respondent Swenson maintained a separate Oanda.com account in his own name (the “Swenson trading account”) into which he wired $10,000 on February 2, 2006 from his personal bank account.
13. Swenson traded futures through the Swenson trading account between February 2006 and November 2006 until Swenson’s losses, and a withdrawal of $1475, reduced the balance to approximately $13.00, when he ceased trading.
14. On December 13, 2006 Respondents repaid Investor #1 $8,011 from the 05914, Inc. bank account.

Investor #2

15. On January 8, 2006 Respondents deposited Investor #2's $10,000 check into the 05914, Inc. bank account.
16. As stated in paragraph 11 above, on February 6, 2006 Respondents wired $15,000 from the 05914, Inc bank account to 05914, Inc.'s futures trading account at Oanda.com, but made no trades through the account, and instead Respondents withdrew the entire $15,000 between July and November of 2006, and converted the $15,000 for Swenson's personal use and benefit.
17. As stated in paragraph 12 above, Respondent Swenson maintained a separate Oanda.com account in his own name (the "Swenson trading account") into which he wired $10,000 on February 2, 2006 from his personal bank account.
18. On September 29, 2006 Respondents deposited Investor #2's $5,000 check into the 05914, Inc. bank account and from there into the Swenson trading account where he suffered losses as described in paragraph 13 above.
19. Respondents failed and refused to notify the Investors that they were commingling invested funds with their own funds and converting their investments to Respondents' own use and benefit, instead of using them for the stated purpose of trading futures.
20. Section 12.F of the Act provides, inter alia, that it shall be a violation of the Act for any person, "to engage in any transaction, practice or course of business in connection with the sale or purchase of securities which works or tends to work a fraud or deceit upon the purchaser or seller thereof".
