White Awards Libraries $2.1 Million in "Educate & Automate" Grants to Boost Technology

SPRINGFIELD — Secretary of State and State Librarian Jesse White today awarded more than 400 grants totaling almost $2.1 million that will allow all types of Illinois libraries to improve technology and provide state-of-the-art computers and networking equipment.

White said the Educate and Automate grant program is designed to improve access to electronic information, develop and expand electronic library networks, upgrade hardware and software and provide assistive and basic technology to library patrons.

"The Educate and Automate program allows libraries to address assistive technology needs as they relate to persons with disabilities," White said. "Libraries use this funding to purchase items such as large print books and computers that turn written words into audio for the visually impaired. Many libraries use these grants to purchase microform reader printers so that special and historical library collections can be preserved for generations to come while other libraries use the grants to purchase and install new local area networks (LANs) to improve networking solutions between libraries.

"Many of our libraries could not pay for these services on their own, which is why I'm delighted that my office can help."

Grants are awarded on a competitive basis, and are funded by a portion of fees collected by the Secretary of State for business related services. Recipients must be a member of one of the state's twelve regional library systems.
